

Rule Change Regarding Initial Broker Licensure

The new rule states that applicants for an initial individual real estate broker license shall provide proof that they have been licensed as an active real estate licensee for four years, with two of the four years occurring immediately preceding submission of a broker license application.